International Seminar on: Protection of rights of elderly people in India-socio-legal issues, challenges and our priorities in the global modernised world

ABOUT THE SEMINAR

The demographic shift in India predicts a significant increase in the elderly population due to declining fertility rates and improved healthcare, with estimates suggesting that by 2050, 19.1% of the population will be above 60 years old. This demographic change brings forth various age-related health challenges such as memory loss, cognitive decline, and arthritis.

To address the concerns of the aging population, the Maintenance and Welfare of Parents and Senior Citizens Act, 2007 (MWPSA Act, 2007) was enacted. This legislation obliges children or legal heirs to provide financial security and care for elderly parents, backed by Maintenance Tribunals at the district level. Additionally, voluntary societies registered under the Societies Registration Act of 1860 assist elderly citizens in filing complaints at these tribunals.

The MWPSA Act also emphasizes the role of the State in providing healthcare facilities, including medical assistance and old age homes, while safeguarding the property rights of the elderly. Failure to comply with the Act can result in legal consequences, such as imprisonment or fines for the children or legal heirs.

However, despite the provisions of the MWPSA Act, certain loopholes exist. For instance, the Act primarily focuses on the obligation of children or legal heirs, leaving elderly individuals vulnerable to mistreatment by in-laws. Moreover, the maintenance allowance of Rs. 10,000 may be insufficient for elderly individuals requiring long-term palliative care. Cases have been reported of elderly individuals being abandoned or mistreated by their children, highlighting the need for stronger protection measures.

This seminar aims to address these loopholes and challenges faced by the elderly population in India. By engaging various stakeholders, including civic society, caregivers, medical experts, social workers, and youth, the seminar seeks to initiate a dialogue to improve the socio-legal framework and enhance the overall experience of aging in India. The ultimate goal is to formulate new policies that bridge the existing gaps and ensure the well-being and dignity of senior citizens in the country.

This seminar would address the existing loopholes in the MWPSA Act (2007) and point out the challenges faced by the elderly population of the country by highlighting various instances. The aim of the seminar will be to initiate a multi-stakeholder conversation that will include civic society, caregivers, medical experts, social workers and youth in order to impart knowledge about the socio-legal framework that exists for the elderly people in India. The seminar will also pave the way for reformulating new policies by addressing the existing gaps and improving the overall experience of ageing in India.

International Seminar on: Protection of rights of elderly people in India-socio-legal issues, challenges and our priorities in the global modernised world
